

Once upon a time, in a beautiful forest, there was a sparrow who loved to keep its home clean and tidy.

One day, the sparrow found a delicious bean and was so excited to have food to eat without having to search far and wide.

After washing its beak, the sparrow put the bean away safely in its nest.

But when it went to eat its breakfast, the bean was nowhere to be found!

The sparrow searched high and low but couldn't find its beloved bean.

As it was looking around, it saw many animals walking by, including a friendly rabbit, a brave firefighter, a kind teacher, and even a wise owl.

A close-up photograph of a sparrow standing on a dark, textured tree trunk. The bird has a distinctive appearance with a bright orange-red cap on its head, a white patch above each eye, and a white patch on its wing. Its body is primarily a mix of brown and tan feathers. It is looking towards the right of the frame with a slightly open beak. The background is blurred, showing more of the forest floor and other trees.

The sparrow asked each of them for help in finding its missing bean, but they all said they were too busy to help.

The sparrow became worried and didn't know what to do.

What's wrong
little sparrow?

A close-up photograph of a small bird, possibly a sparrow, standing on a mossy tree branch. The bird has brown, orange, and white feathers. To its right, a large, detailed ant with a shiny brown exoskeleton is walking on the same branch. The background is blurred green foliage and flowers.

Just then, a clever little ant came scampering by and asked, 'What's wrong, little sparrow?'

The sparrow told the ant about its lost bean and all the animals that wouldn't help.

Don't worry, 'I'll
-het help you I'll finbu un find that beeaa!'

Is ant ou ywam viht tie aud hd aæ aardteleds tdo of nro, kizciovu me dudyl im....

The ant smiled and said, 'Don't worry, I'll help you find that bean!'

The ant crawled up to the king's ear and gave a friendly whisper, saying, 'The king should help the sparrow find its bean.'

A group of characters in a room with a king on a throne. A large white text box is overlaid on the scene.

The king, who was sitting on his throne, overheard the ant and smiled.

He immediately called upon his loyal minions, including the teacher, the firefighter, and the wise owl, and told them to help the sparrow find its bean.

Together, all the animals worked together to find the lost bean.

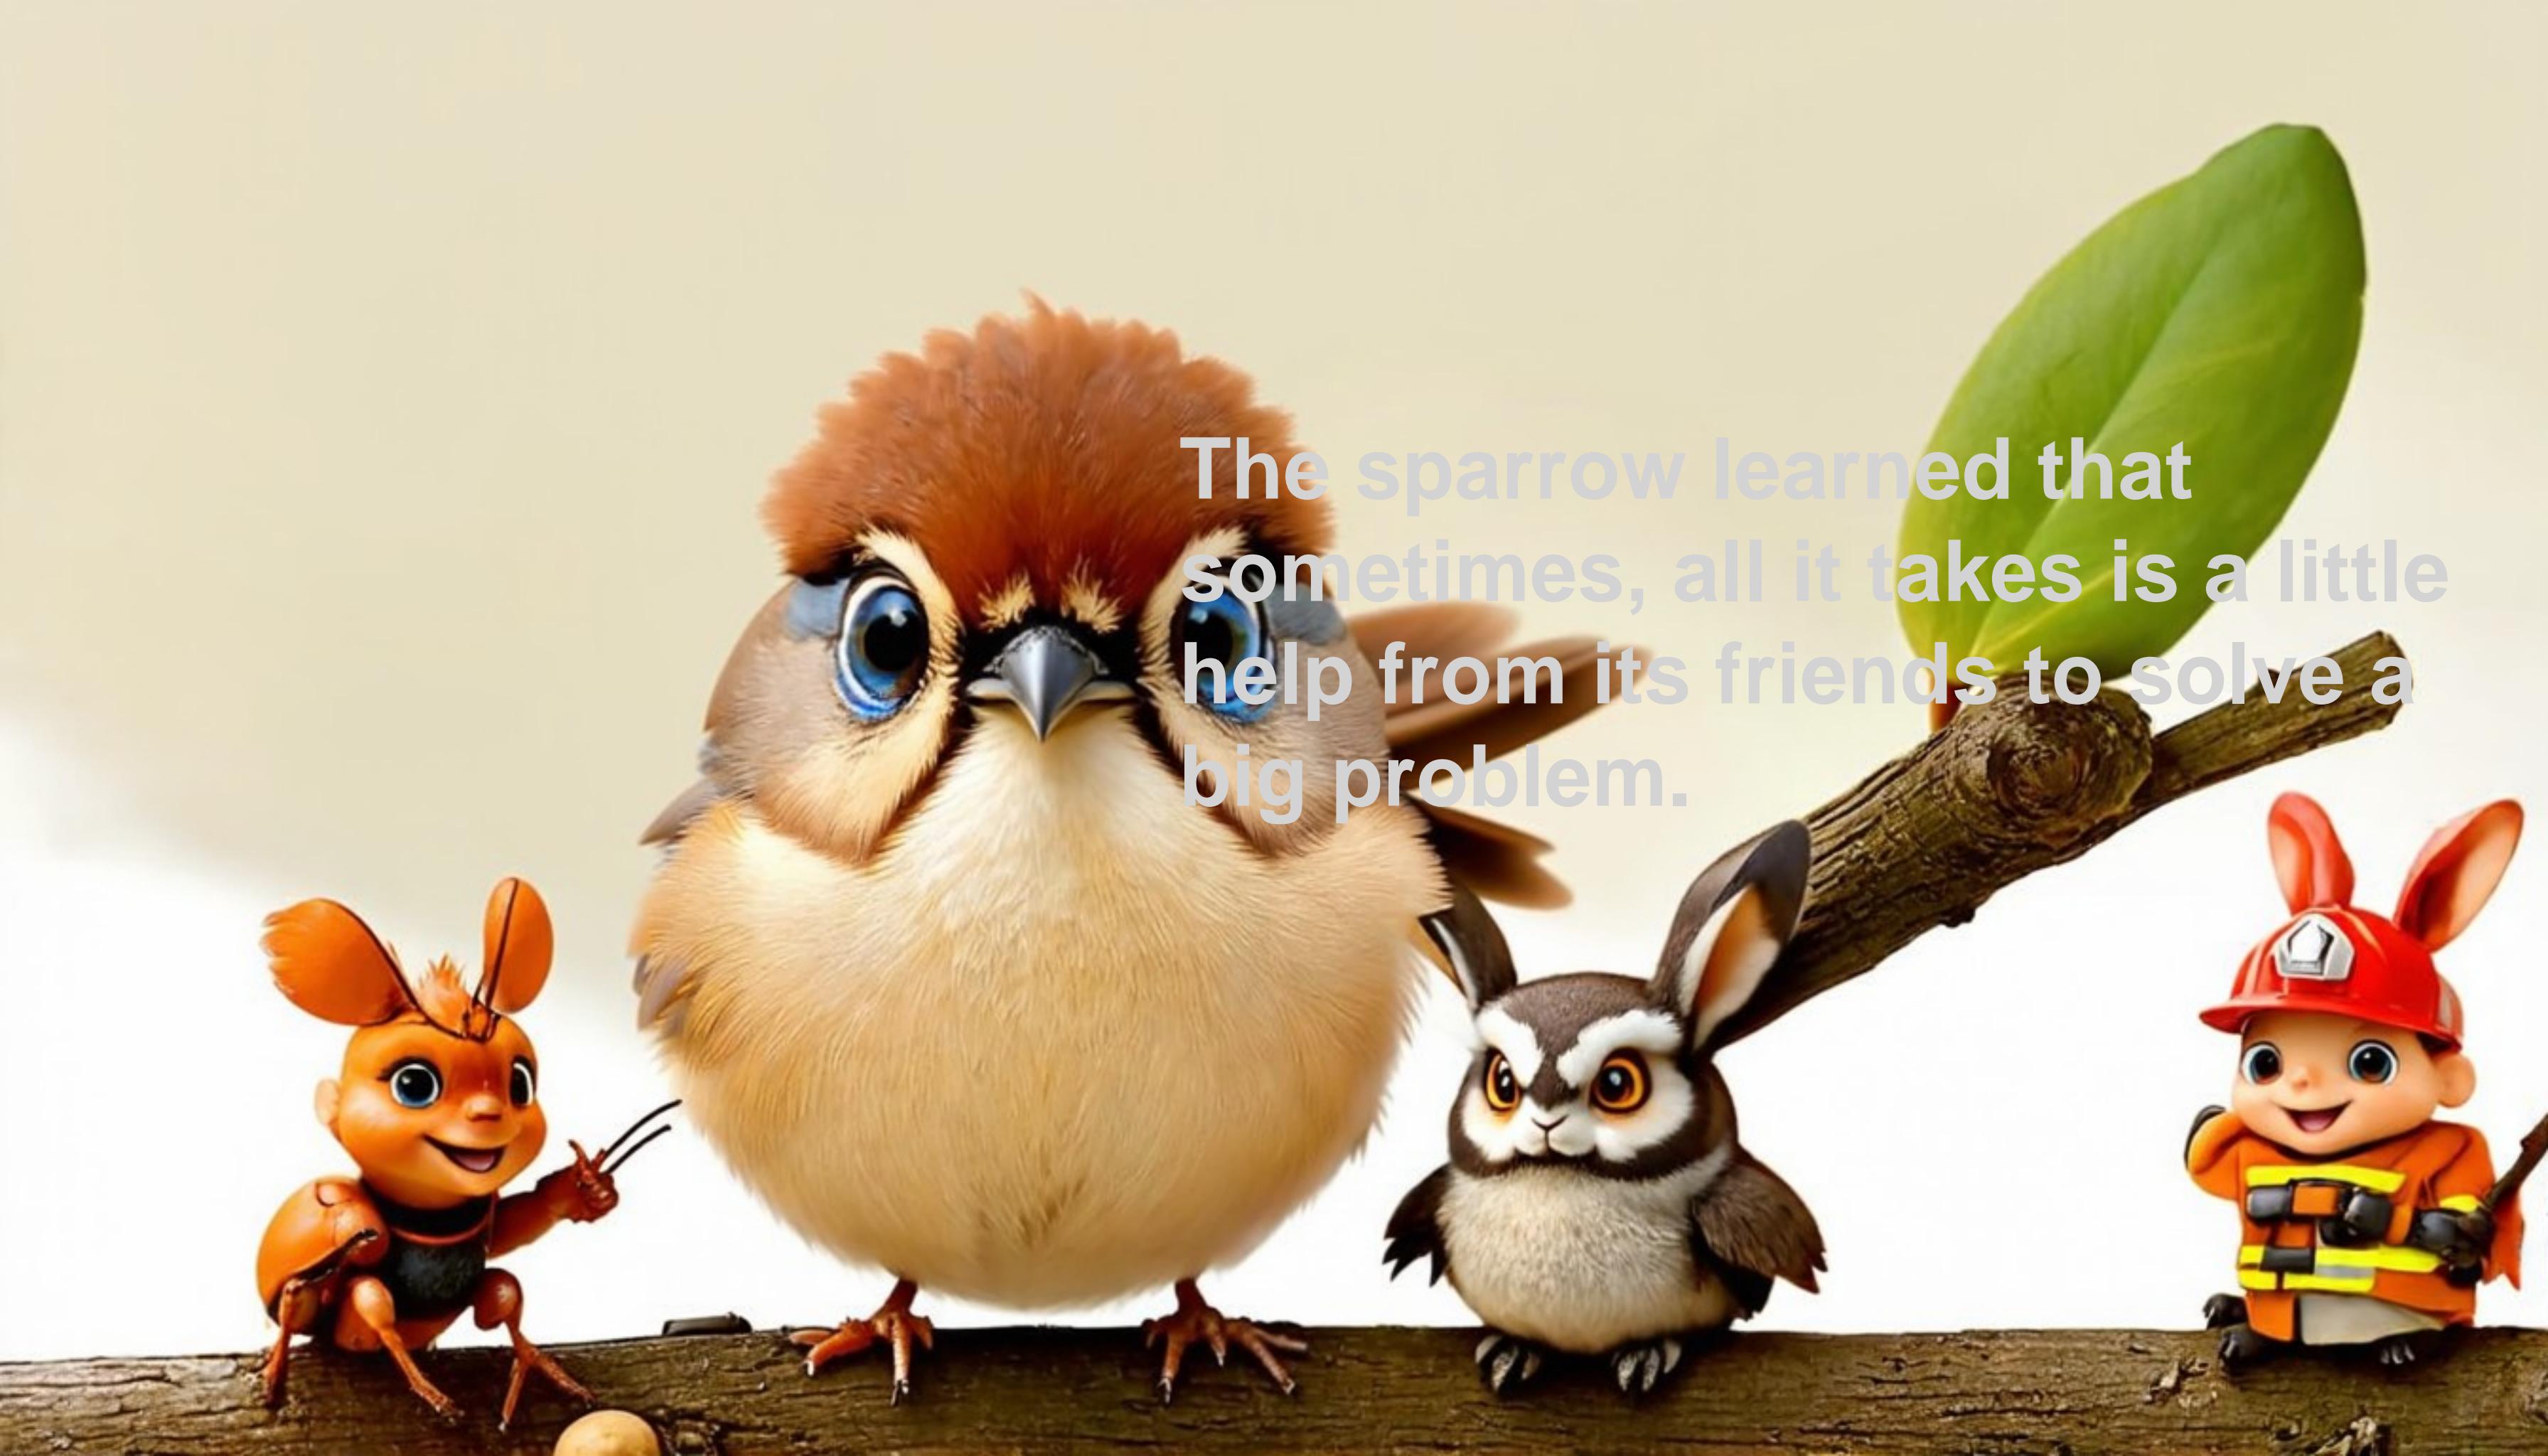

The carpenter (who was a skilled builder) searched high and low until he finally found it hidden behind a leaf.

The sparrow was overjoyed to have its bean back and thanked all the animals for their help.

The animals all cheered and celebrated a job well done!

The sparrow learned that sometimes, all it takes is a little help from its friends to solve a big problem.